Although many people refer to Photoshop as the "photoshop" of image editing software, it's possible to open and save photographs without Photoshop by using a much simpler application. Photofinder is free and full-featured. OpenOffice.org Impress is a free program and also supports photographs. There are other programs with similar functionality such as GIMP, Paint Shop Pro, and Photo Magick.

What's New In?

The Presidential Commission on Election Integrity released its report on Tuesday after two months of investigating “election anomalies.” The commission, led by Vice President Mike Pence and Kansas Secretary of State Kris Kobach, finished its work on Tuesday in what the Washington Post described as a quiet news day for President Donald Trump's inner circle. As Reuters reported, the commission found only two instances where voter fraud may have occurred, meaning the majority of the commission's concerns were “crimes of ordinary voter error.” The commission found no proof of widespread voter fraud. The vice president told The New York Times that he was “very optimistic” the president would sign the commission's final report. The commission has also made two requests for federal funding to continue its work. One of these requests, according to the Arizona Republic, seeks $3.9 million to hire 15 new employees to do data analysis. The second request, according to the Texas Tribune, is a request for $443,000 to pay for a conference. The Washington Post reports that the commission also asked for $3.1 million in federal funding to “consolidate its data systems across state and local government.” The commission did not find evidence of Russian interference in U.S. elections, according to the Associated Press. Instead, the commission claimed that there are “significant barriers to voting,” according to the Washington Post. The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) said that the commission's reports does not prove the existence of voter fraud, but rather “tries to enshrine in the electoral system practices that are fundamentally at odds with principles of fair and free elections.” In a statement, the ACLU said, “The commission's findings are fundamentally flawed and its recommendations would severely undermine the integrity of future elections by creating a new and unprecedented exception to the ‘one person, one vote’ principle.” The Washington Post reported that the White House did not have a comment on the commission's findings.
