max for live 8 m4l addons 5.1.9 A: I had this, until I restarted my computer. The solution was to reinstall Max For Live. Q: VSTS Team Services V1 Build Pipeline I'm working with VSTS MSDN as my dev environment, and I want to set up a simple integration build. I have a .NET Web API that I want to deploy to my Azure PaaS account. I'd like the build to pull all of the code into a Web App /.Zip package and deploy it onto my server. I'm having trouble finding clear documentation/examples of this from Microsoft. I've got a project and a build definitions. How can I get this going? A: If I understand your question correctly, you have an ASP.Net Web API project, and you want to: Pull in code from version control Do some build-related operations (e.g. compression) Move the code into an artifact (e.g. a deployment) Deploy the artifact to an Azure Web App service With this scenario, you don't need to use the VSTS/TFS Build Pipeline. You can create an Azure Storage Build Definition that builds your project. After the build is successful, you can use the Azure Pipelines portal to automate the deployment of the build artifact. Here's a detailed tutorial for you: If you want to use VSTS/TFS Build Pipeline to deploy an ASP.Net Web API project to an Azure Web App service, you can refer to the following blog: Web API to Azure Web App with Continuous Delivery I'm sorry, that came out of nowhere, didn't it. It's time to put that (I) out of its misery! "Neil Mann" 06/09/2000 03:53 PM To: "C. Kay Mann (E-mail)" , "B. Wayne Vogler (E-mail)" cc: Subject: Fax We have a faxed copy of the Gallion document.1.
